Chapter One

High up in a
canopy of trees,
Bertha, inventor
extraordinaire, was tucked away in her workshop.

She could spend
HOURS
there –
tinkering,
fixing and
building.

Bertha liked to work on her incredible creations in peace, so she had designed a variety of devices to help.

They could take in the post,

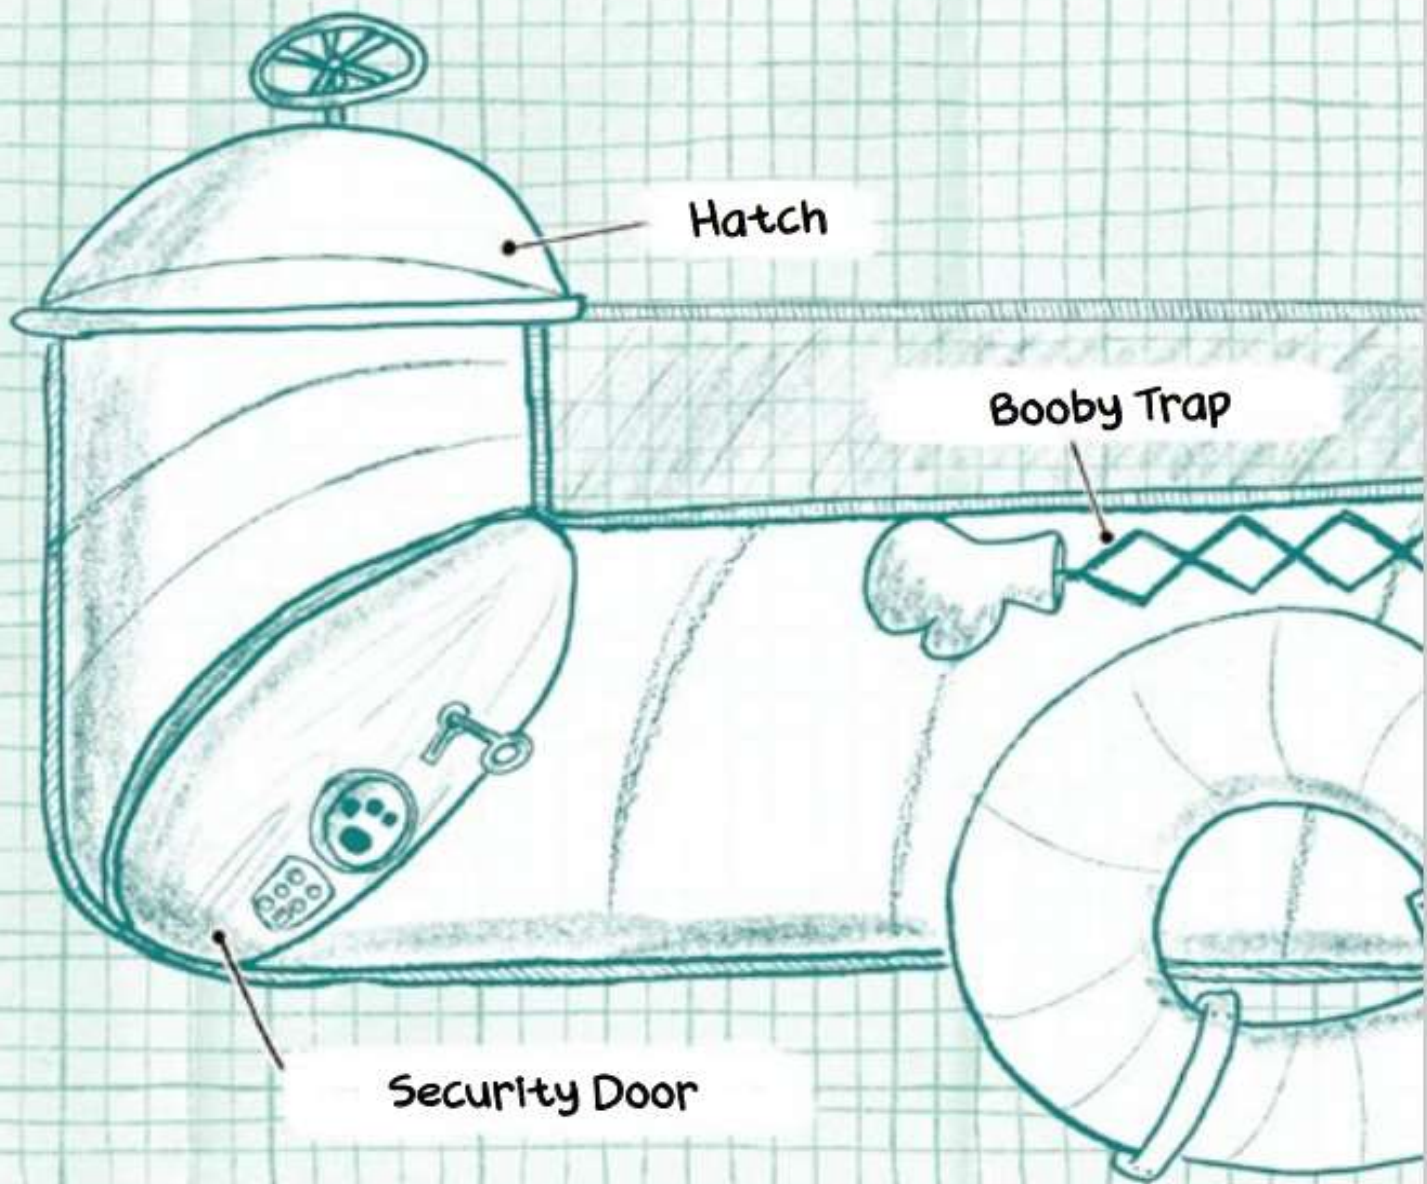

answer the phone

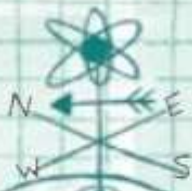

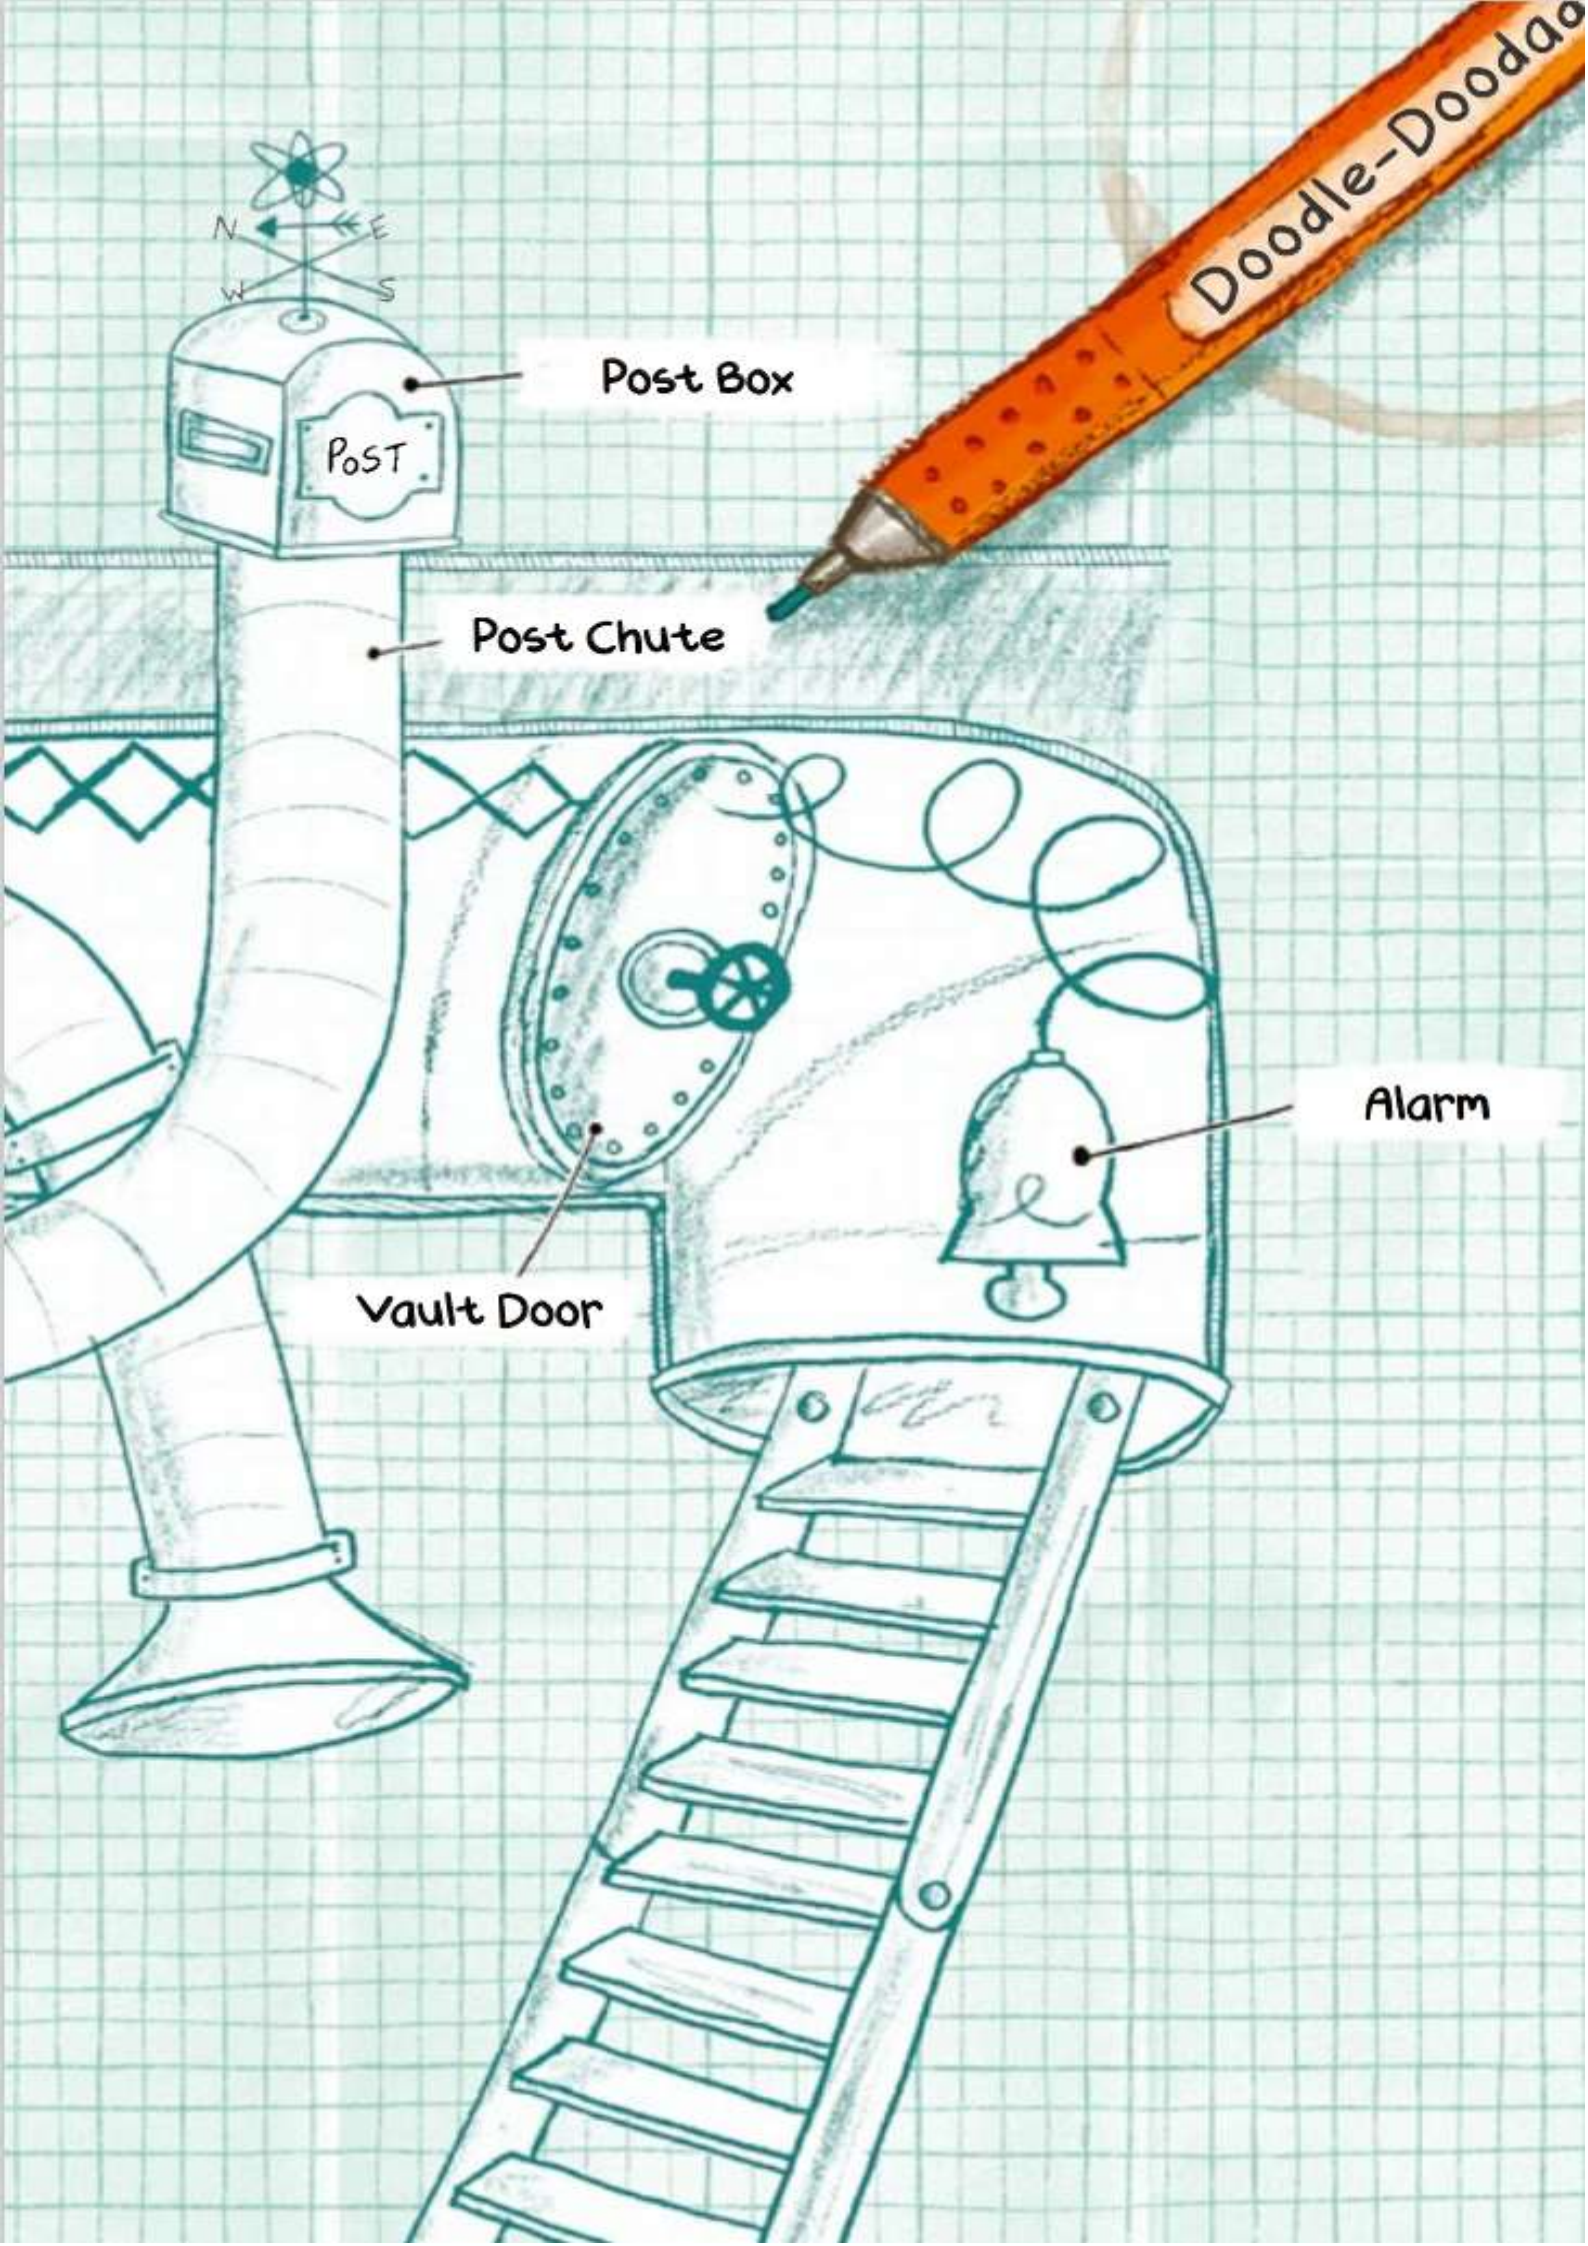

and even make her breakfast!

The main entrance to her workshop was through a hatch at the top – no one could get in or out without Bertha knowing.
